WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Palestine Trouble Heads for Climax As Arab Nations Prepare to Attack; Vandenberg Gives Warning to Russ

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

CLIMAX: Palestine

With a clashing of arms and a babble of alarmed voices, events in Palestine appeared to be piling up for another minor but bloody climax in human history.

This particular crisis had its immediate beginning in a savage attack on the Arab city of Jaffa by members of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground force. Fact that the Irgunists' foray against Jaffa was made in defiance of orders by Haganah, the regular Jewish militia, carried no weight in the rush of incidents that followed.

From Palestine's coastal plain, site of the neighboring cities of Jaffa (Arab) and Tel Aviv (Jewish), the focal point of the disturbances moved swiftly inland to the holy city of Jerusalem.

Arabs and Jews hastily deployed their on-the-scene forces in preparation for what stacked up to be a major battle for possession of Jerusalem. Facing each other across a scant 200 yards of no-man's land, each side had its eyes fixed on the strategic Alamein camp which the British were evacuating.

But that wasn't all. It soon became apparent that the Arab league nations surrounding Palestine did not intend to stay out of this fight.

Reports were current that six Arab nations had decided to invade the Holy Land with ground, sea and air forces before the British ended their mandate on May 15.

The whole thing was shaping up in the form of a more or less total Arab effort to crush completely the Jewish intention of creating a Zionist state in Palestine.

Worried United Nations delegates, meanwhile, cast about for a means to prevent the inevitable carnage, or at least to preserve the city of Jerusalem.

France pushed its sponsorship of a heavily-armed volunteer U. N. police corps to safeguard Jerusalem. Hint of the make-up of such a force was given in the suggestion that it might include 100 New York police volunteers, but no Russians. This protective army would number from 500 to 800 members.

While the Palestine situation leaped into a frantic state of flux, the United States kept discreetly out of it all in conformation to its recently adopted policy of apparent disinterest to what happens in the Holy Land.

DEFIANCE: Two Issues

In a surprise speech at a dinner given by Michigan chambers of commerce for the state's congressional delegation, Sen. Arthur Vandenberg served notice on Russia that:

1. The United States may join western Europe in a military alliance against Communist aggression, and

2. "We shall not surrender to Communist conspiracies in the United States."

Thus, the chief Republican proponent of bi-partisan foreign policy split the rind on two issues which, like grapefruit, will come more and more to be in the public eye as this year wears on.

Simply stated, those two issues are: Whether the U. S. should line up militarily alongside the recently formed union of western European nations, and whether the Communist party should be outlawed in this country.

They could become decisive issues in the presidential campaign. Indeed, Harold Stassen already has introduced one of them by coming out bluntly in favor of outlawing Communists in the U. S.

Vandenberg said, "We are suicidal fools if we do not root out and destroy any treason at home which may dream of bringing world revolution to the United States."

The Michigan senator only hinted at a U. S. military alliance with western Europe, but his remarks hardly could be misconstrued.

What Vandenberg didn't say is that while the U. S. has no formal or official role in the union of western European nations, American aid and support, military-wise, of that union almost inevitably is implied.

Whether or not this nation will grant that assurance will come to be a towering question in the public mind soon.

SKY-HIGH: Bombing

A team of air force and army ordnance men is seeking better methods of hitting pin-point bomb targets from extremely high altitudes, out of reach of most anti-aircraft guns or fighter planes.

This joint organization is conducting most of its secret tests in the California desert at Muroc air base. Its assignment is to carry out research in bombing techniques, particularly at high altitudes.

OUTLOOK

The Dim Peace

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, army chief of staff, was taking a dim view of the possibilities of peace.

In fact, he admitted to the senate armed services committee, the prospect of a war is appreciably greater now than it was three months ago.

Adding forcefully to the pattern of evidence which U. S. armed forces representatives have been constructing to support their requests for a military draft and universal training, Bradley said:

"I think we would be neglecting our duty if we did not try to tell you that we are a little bit more afraid something will happen than we were three months ago when we were talking in terms of reserves."

And he added "we are not so sure" that war might not be looming in the immediate future.

To his testimony Bradley appended this clincher:

"We know that we are all speaking about Russia."

There it was—a responsible appraisal by the chief of staff of where the present talking war between Russia and the U. S. might lead.

What caused General Bradley to think the situation is more critical now than it was three months ago? He didn't say, but there is only one apparent explanation.

The tide of power politics has turned against Russia and is moving in favor of the western democracies. With ERP beginning to channel money and supplies into Europe, the fields most favorable to Communist growth—poverty, hunger and dissatisfaction—are starting to be reclaimed.

As far as getting control of western Europe was concerned, Communists saw their main chance glimmering when they lost the Italian election. They have, in short, gone beyond the stage where they can carry out territorial acquisitions through political coups.

In order to expand further now, Russia probably would have to apply force, which, in this case, would be the Red army.

And that may be why General Bradley thinks war is more of a likelihood now than it was three months ago.

SMASHER: For Atoms

To expand further the constantly widening fields of atomic research, a gigantic new cyclotron will be built at the University of California at a total cost of nine million dollars.

In announcing the project the atomic energy commission said the new cyclotron—commonly known as an atom-smasher—would be 20 times more powerful than the 4,900-ton machine currently in operation at the Berkeley institution.

David E. Lihenthal, AEC chairman, provided a hint as to the kind of long range planning for peace the commission is visualizing when he said that the new cyclotron "serves notice to the world that it is the intent of the people of the United States to be pre-eminent in the development of fundamental science of all kinds."

Engineering already is under way on the huge atom-splitter, but it will take five years before it is completed. Concealed as 20 times more powerful than the most powerful cyclotron now operating, it will produce atomic bullets ranging in force from six billion to 10 billion volts.

At Large

Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman has been named by President Truman as ambassador-at-large for the European recovery program. Harriman resigned his cabinet post immediately.

Money Talks

Now an inventor has come up with a check that not only will talk but will scream if it has been forged or tampered with.

Burgess Smith, who used to do legal counterfeiting for the U. S. treasury, claims that his check will identify itself verbally when it is passed through a special machine. And if it has been tampered with it will emit a shrill screech, indicating that it is worthless.

Target

Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers (CIO), was seriously wounded when he was shot by an unknown assailant who fired a shotgun at him through the window of his Detroit home. Communists were suspected of being behind the attack because of Reuther's strong opposition to them in the union.

MINERS: Temporary

Let not the public be deceived by the spell of quiet that is reigning in the nation's soft coal mines and the temporary evaporation of John L. Lewis from the stage.

As it looks now, this peaceful situation is good only until June 30. Even while the miners continue to chop coal in the pits, they make it clear that they expect to go back to their fishing on that date.

June 30 is the day the present wage agreement between the United Mine Workers and the coal operators expires. It is possible, of course, that a new agreement may be reached before then, but it is practically impossible to find anyone who thinks so.

After Lewis' tussle with Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough in which he and the union were fined a total of $1,420,000, the miners went back to work after hearing John L.'s "wish" that they do so. This, however, is regarded as merely a temporary truce.

One of the reasons advanced for Lewis' cantankerous delay in coming to terms on the pension dispute was that the mine leader was eking out the work stoppage as long as possible in order to deplete the nation's coal reserves and so put himself in a better bargaining position when the contract negotiations came up.

That he accomplished that end there is no gainsaying. Coal stocks went down almost to zero all over the country, resulting in curtailment of steel production, a cut in rail travel and various major and minor industrial shutdowns.

It is a fact, too, that industry will not have recovered its balance sufficiently by June 30 to cope adequately with whatever emergency Lewis might precipitate this time.

FOOD PRICES: Logical

Not that it makes it any easier to pay the grocery bill, but the reasons why food prices are so high are no mystery.

U. S. has been channeling food and resources into foreign countries at a rate and volume never before approached. Also, every American able to digest solid food is eating 17 per cent more than he did before the war.

Finally, until just recently, consumers have been spending their money on food because there was nothing much else available to buy. Those conclusions were reached by University of Wisconsin economists after an investigation into the causes of current high price levels.

Center of the whole spiral are grain prices.

Strong exports of corn and wheat caused an upswing in prices on the commodity markets. More expensive grains cause prices of flour, bread, ham, pork loin and rib roasts to go up.

OREGON: Next Up

After whirling breezily through Ohio to the thorough discomfiture of Sen. Robert Taft, campaigning Harold E. Stassen set his political sights on the May 21 Oregon primary election where he was due to joust with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for that state's Republican convention delegates.

In a kick-off address in Portland Stassen refurbished his foreign and domestic policies for the edification of Oregon voters who will elect the 12-member GOP delegation.

Stassen was taking his Oregon campaign seriously because a large measure of importance was being attached to the election insofar as it would provide the first test of West coast opinion on Republican presidential contenders.

SHORTAGE: Farm Machinery

Behind the present shortage of farm machinery in the U. S. lies a now all-too-familiar story: More such machinery is being produced than ever before but it isn't enough to meet the demand.

Waiting list for farm machinery is phenomenally long, yet 131 per cent more tractors, cream separators and other pieces of farm equipment were produced in 1947 than were available in 1939.

Case of the Nazi Reception, Or Misleading Propaganda

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON--Last month there was a memorandum on my desk from the department of the army addressed to "all former war correspondents, subject: Army Day, 1948." It suggested that perhaps I had a war story that stood out in my mind that I would like to relate as an Army Day feature. The memorandum didn't state which war was preferred, if any, but I supposed that it didn't matter so long as it wasn't the next one.

I reported the landing on the Normandy beaches, the Battle of the Bulge and many of the other important events of the last war—from a microphone in Washington; my connection with World War I was less vicarious; my experiences during earlier conflicts such as San Juan, Gettysburg, Chapultepec, Yorktown and Hastings are a little hazy.

Therefore I decided that the department of the army might permit me to relate an adventure which provided a little comedy relief in 1939, in the nervous interlude, known as the "phony war," before the real storm broke. It went something like this:

It happened at Wesermuende, the German air and naval base, shortly after Britain and France had declared war on Germany. American correspondents still had considerable freedom, and I had managed to wrangle permission to interview the first British fliers shot down by the Germans. I did, but that isn't this story.

For all the careful German preparations for war, there was still a certain amount of confusion in the office of propaganda under the highly efficient father of lies, Dr. Goebbels, but I managed to get the use of a German army transport plane to fly me (with a German radio man) from Berlin to Wesermuende.

he war was roaring westward into Poland and the great Tempelhof airfield in Berlin was all but deserted when we arrived before dawn and were escorted with alacrity, and not a little wonderment, to our transport which already was warming up. We had been up all night and my colleague immediately fell asleep on a pile of parachute equipment. As soon as dawn broke, I busied myself watching the anti-aircraft batteries in the fields surrounding Berlin, gun pits in fields surrounded by placid, end-chewing cows who were, like the rest of the bemused population, unaware of what the Fuehrer was about to bring down on them.

For some reason we flew low, almost scratching our wings on the church steeples. At last my companion awoke. We were approaching the airfield. It was a lively spot. As we drew nearer, we could see a detachment of marines which came to attention as we approached. A half dozen staff cars were drawn up in a semi-circle, balanced by blue-jackets and ground personnel of the air force.

"We're lucky," my companion remarked, "some big brass must be coming, we'll see a parade." No other plane was visible though, as we circled a couple of times over the docks, thick with ships including the long-lost Europa, back on her dash from Murmansk. Finally we landed a couple of yards from the military formation which by now was drawn up at attention. We were a little embarrassed, for we were in plain sight of the imposing array, and were afraid we might suddenly bump into the visiting dignitary—and we were hatless and unshaven. I let my companion go ahead. There was no place to go, however, but in the direction of the naval detachment and their commanding officer. It later developed he was the commander of the base, a tall, slim, correct naval officer, perhaps a little nervous, though we were too nervous ourselves to realize it at the moment.

We advanced, like pups approaching a porcupine. A command rang out. The troops snapped to present arms, the officer saluted and drew a manuscript from his tunic, something new to me in military procedure—all I could think of was a painting of General Washington reading a message to his troops (and I always had thought that was a flight of the artist's fancy).

The officer began reading—it was a message of welcome all right. Finally, my companion (he was half-English, which may explain his fortitude) interrupted: "There must be some mistake. We are two radio correspondents."

The commander bowed, looked abashed, glanced over our heads toward the plane.

"But where are the other gentlemen?" he wanted to know.

"There are just two of us," we replied.

"But the minister of propaganda? Who is representing him? We were notified by the department—a special plane—the truck for the baggage—"

We explained briefly, and waited for the skies to fall. They didn't. The officer continued his speech without even dropping his monocle—just to be sure—editing it slightly to make it apply as he went. There was no question that he thought we were going to be, certainly OUGHT to be Goebbels.

The formation melted away, the truck which had been requested to transport sound equipment started to load, all but one of the staff cars slunk away. There was only one red face, the airforce commander's, and he felt no embarrassment, but rage. This was a purely military field and I had held up the German war effort for half a morning, thus contributing my bit to Allied victory even before America was in the war.

For the rest, the only significant memory, except for my interview with those British boys, was the questioning by the German officers. Obviously they didn't share the complacent assurance of victory of the Nazi higher-ups—they remembered World War I.

Today the greatest danger to the peace is the possibility that the will, the purpose, the power of the United States will not be understood in time by the Russian command—that they will fail to recognize the risk of self-annihilation they are taking in their "cold war," as the Kaiser and Hitler failed to realize it.

Roses, But Never A Spray of Yew

There are many good garden books, and I for one had about come to the conclusion that the final word on gardening had been written, when along came the Woman's Home Companion Garden Book (P. F. Collier and Son corporation, publisher, New York City) with many new angles. Edited by John C. Wister, director of the Arthur Hoyt Scott horticultural foundation, Swarthmore college, this book speaks with authority.

"It is correct," it states on page 472, "to speak of narcissus, and also correct to use the English term daffodil for all species and varieties of narcissus. There is confusion about this, a popular impression being that daffodils are the yellow kind, and narcissus the white kinds. There also has been confusion about the name jonquil. All the daffodils of the jonquil group are distinguished by their narrow, garlic-like foliage and by their characteristic bright yellow color, which is the same shade throughout the flower."

All of this interested me mightily as I had just been studying a photograph of a clump of narcissus in a popular magazine's "name this picture" contest. The leaves on the plant shown were broad, though the answer given by the editor was "jonquil." Obviously, even contest editors may err.

The narcissus discussion is a sample of Editor Wister's directness in this new garden book and there is more like it on every page.

Not the least interesting writing in this book is the foreword by the well-loved Liberty Hyde Bailey, dean of all gardeners, whose accomplishments need no eulogy here.

Another intriguing feature is the discussion and diagramming of various geographic areas according to their geological and climatic conditions. Most of us have been frost-bitten too often for comfort by blindly following the usual maps. Additional data and measuring qualities have been added to long-established material in making a broader and yet more personal presentation of his problems to the gardener in any given section of the United States and Canada. The net result is the clarification of many heretofore-vague statements.

It would be unfair to other excellent books to say that this is the best garden book yet published. In some ways it excels all others, but still there are other volumes which may contain more information on specific subjects.

Perhaps the way to size up this 1,000-page volume is to say that regardless of whatever other gardening books you own, you need this one too if you seek fresh angles on your favorite hobby.

With its fine cover and paper stock, its 24 photographic pages in full color, its 56 pages of black and white illustrations and more than 100 how-to-do-it pictures, the Woman's Home Companion Garden Book is completely satisfying.

THERE seems to be a general opinion that the opening of a big-league season is an interesting item to only 10 cities in which the 16 clubs are parked. Nothing could be farther off the track of truth.

The 16 big-league teams are largely made up of ballplayers from the hamlets and the villages of the country who take a deep pride in the exploits of a native son. The big-league cities are only the spectators. They rarely contribute any of the talent needed to carry on the show.

Here are a few examples: Ewell Blackwell from San Dimas, Calif.; Phil Cavaretta, Wilmette, Ill.; Bill Nicholson, Chestertown, Md.; Larry Jansen, Forest Grove, Ore.; Harry Walker, Leeds, Ala.; Bob Feller, Van Meter, Iowa; George Kell, Swift, Ark.; Phil Marchedon, Penetang, Ont.; Bill Johnson, Montclair, N. J.; Joe DiMaggio, Dom DiMaggio, Martinez, Calif., and Bobby Doerr from Illane, Ore.

After all, Ty Cobb came from Royston, Ga.; Mathewson from Factoryville, Pa.; Lajoie from Woonsocket, Cy Young and Alexander from outposts in Ohio and Nebraska.

Baseball is a small-town game—a village enterprise. There is little room for sandlots in the big cities. The cities only supply the spectators. They haven't time to bother about the kids who, in the main, can live or die unless they happen to be lucky enough to live under the rule of Commissioner Wallander of New York, who is vitally interested in their careers. There are other Commissioner Wallanders now—but not enough of them.

In the last few years, baseball has taken on a tremendous lift. It broke all attendance records in 1946. It broke these records again in 1947. It is my belief the old game will set a new cluster of marks in 1948.

This season, if one can judge from the spring hullabaloo should be baseball's all-time record year as far as attendance goes. The two leagues should pass the 20 million mark with something to spare. Which finds us hailing the Charley Ebbets of 30 years ago as he remarked: "Baseball is in its infancy."

Pennant Predictions

AMERICAN LEAGUE
No. 1: New York Yankees.
No. 2: Boston Red Sox.
No. 3: Detroit Tigers.
No. 4: Cleveland Indians.
No. 5: Philadelphia Athletics.
No. 6: Browns, White Sox and Senators, neck and neck, for last place.

Under the sound leadership of Bucky Harris, the Yankees are picked to repeat for one solid reason—they look to be the most solid all-around team in the race.

Early buds and blossoms are a far cry from the yellow and crimson leaves of late September, so in making a selection one must gamble with fate and the fortunes of war, the breaks of the game, through the five and a half months beyond.

The Red Sox are as good as the Yankees, perhaps a shade better, up to the important matter of pitching and strong reserves.

With their excellent pitching, the Tigers might win through the right and left arms Steve O'Neil can throw against the enemy. But the Tigers have neither an infield nor an outfield to match either the Yankees or the Red Sox.

Cleveland's improved Indians still belong in fourth place as Connie Mack's Athletics have a death grip on the top of the second division.

The White Sox, Senators and Browns are strictly minor league clubs who have no place in a big league.

They are out to live or make money on the four strong clubs where, on their own, they couldn't draw 300 thousand people. They are the league's chiselers. They should offer a spectacular battle for last place in the dizzy dip to the subway title. So we can forget about them as busy broom-men sweep away the debris.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

No. 1: St. Louis Cardinals.
No. 2: Brooklyn Dodgers.
No. 3: Boston Braves.
No. 4: New York Giants.
No. 5: Cincinnati Reds.
No. 6: Pittsburgh Pirates.
No. 7: Chicago Cubs.
No. 8: Philadelphia Phillies.

This is a very different picture from the American league layout. It will be a much better and much tighter race from top to bottom. There certainly should be a much closer scramble among the Cardinals, Dodgers and Braves than the younger league can give you.

In picking the Cardinals over the Dodgers and Braves, one has to gamble with fate—a kind of fate that will leave most of Eddie Dyer's veteran athletes intact.

The Cardinals, in their first-line strength, have the best team in their league, but their reserves are weak and thin. They can afford few reverses. Their catching is none too hot. But they have a pitching staff that should be well ahead of all others—Dickson, Munger, Brecheen, Pollet, Hearn, Brazle and at least two others who can win a lot of games.

Keep glass coffee makers fresh and sweet by frequently rinsing upper and lower bowls in baking soda solution. Rinse filters in solution (one tablespoon of soda to a cup of water), let dry, then rinse before using.

Roast meats will carve more easily if allowed to "set" a few minutes after they are taken from the oven. High ceilings appear lower when painted a dark, rich color—such as red or royal blue.

Open wrapper of wrapped bread carefully on one end. Replace unused slices of bread and roll wrapper under tight; bread will remain fresh until last crust is used.

THE IDENTITY OF THE CHURCH

The Church is built according to a pattern (Hebrew 8:5) and we are workers or builders together with God. (1 Cor. 3:8-9)

We as Christians must follow God's pattern revealed through the teachings of Christ and the Apostles. (Matthew 28:18-20) The word of God is the measuring rod. (Rev. 1:1) When God's word is the guide, the house is built upon the rock and will stand. (Matthew 7:24-27)

To corrupt God's plan in ANY point is to lose identity. An example of this is the Ephesian church. (Rev. 2:4)

GREETINGS

To newspaper people the symbol "30" denotes the end of a story; but more than that, it has taken on a half-mystical aura as a term signifying the ending of anything. And there is another symbol that appears at the bottom of every page of a story except the last. It is simply the word "more."

Your formal education may be completed now. For some of you, undoubtedly it is. That's "30." But a new story is beginning—a year of continuing work, an expanding mind and viewpoint, a gathering of experience, responsibilities and increased knowledge. It will have many pages, and at the bottom of every one will be written "more... more... more..."

By PAT HILKER

JEFF had a pocketful of nickels, but he followed her to the change booth. He stood behind her in the line, his eyes noting every detail from her soft, short black curls to her doll-size suede shoes. He even approved of her hat, a warm plum color the exact shade of coat and shoes.

He was so busy with his survey that he failed to notice the nickel she left in the worn wooden cup in the shelf.

"Hey, Lady," the money-changer yelled after her, "You left your change!"

She must not have heard the man, for she was already through the turnstile and was disappearing down the stairs to the platform. Jeff tried to make his voice sound casual as he told the man, "I'll give it to her."

The man grinned. "Sure don't blame you."

Jeff fumbled in his haste to get through the turnstile. He followed her downstairs and spotted her in the middle of the crowd on the platform, watching the F train roll in.

"Your change," he panted, "You left your change at the booth."

She stared up at him, and the impact of the incredibly dark velvety eyes tossed his heart into some rosy world far, far away. Desperately he searched for the smooth, brilliant, exactly right thing he never could think to say until it was too late. But, "You left your change," he repeated inanely, and held out the nickel.

"Why, thank you very much," she said, and her voice was just what it should have been—low and soft and sweet. "How nice of you to chase after me!"

"Oh, that's all right," he said. "I . . . I . . ." and there he stuck.

She smiled rather vaguely at him, waited a minute, and started to turn away when he failed to think of anything else to say.

"Wait, please!" he shouted at her. He didn't need to shout—he was right beside her—so close that the crowd rushing out of the train threw her against him. For a breathless moment, he saw her tiny hand clutch at his coat, smelled the wonderful sweetness of her perfume as she laughed up at him. He supported her elbows and helped her catch her balance.

"This seems to be your day for rescuing me," she said, "Thanks again."

Before he could say another word, she was inside the car and the door was closing. Then he realized he hadn't found out her name or anything about her except that her left hand was innocent of rings—wedding or otherwise.

He darted down the platform and found a last late-closing door. It didn't help much to know that he was on the same train with her—one that he had no business on. It was jammed and he struggled hopelessly to get back to her car. He died a thousand deaths at 34th street, 23rd and 14th, afraid she would get off and he would miss her in the mob.

It happened at West 4th street, but he saw her in time and bounded after her, down the stairs to the Sixth avenue platform, barely keeping her in sight.

He thought she looked right at him, just before she wheeled and ran back up the stairs. "Hope she isn't afraid of me—might peg me for a wolf," he told himself. "No—that's silly! Probably didn't even see me." He chased back up the stairs—to find that she was not on the downtown platform. He looked behind the news stand, at both ends of the long platform—she was not in sight.

It dawned on him to look across the tracks at the uptown platform—where he saw her, just before the train pulled in.

He skidded all the way down the stairs, landing in an ungraceful and thoroughly disgruntled heap at the bottom. By the time he untangled his long arms and legs and got across the mezzanine floor and back up the uptown stairs, the train was pulling out and she was gone.

He was sunk, stymied, and he didn't have the remotest chance of catching her—of finding out what any half-wit should have asked her before he returned the precious

The guard looked at her with understanding, looked grimly at Jeff and had a firm grip on Jeff's collar an instant later. "Bothering the lady, eh? Why you—I ought to have you thrown in the jug!"

In about 40 seconds, Jeff was standing dazed and furious outside the subway station, back where he had first maneuvered to walk close to the lovely little black-haired stranger.

Why had she raised such a rumpus? She must have seen him before, when she doubled back at West 4th—she must have run away from nickel. Who was she? Where did she live? Did she travel the same route every day? Did she work—did she—he didn't have the slightest clue as to how to find her again—ever.

Jeff spotted her in the middle of the crowd on the platform, watching the F train roll in. "Your change," he panted, "you left your change at the booth."

Cursing himself for a blithering idiot, he stepped on the next train that came along. Might as well go back to 42nd street and ride his usual train—back to his lonely room and his lonelier thoughts.

Of course he decided to be at that change booth every day for the rest of his life, if necessary, until he found her again. He pondered an ad to run in the Times: "Will the beautiful lady with the dark eyes who forgot a nickel at the change booth at 42nd street on the night of . . ."

Back at 42nd street, he stood gloomily staring at her for several minutes before he realized it. She was standing on the downtown platform again, right where he had first muffed his chances with this girl he had dreamed all of his life of some day meeting. She was talking to a man, so absorbed that she didn't even glance in his direction.

Once more Jeff dashed upstairs, downstairs and along the platform until at last he could reach out and grasp her arm.

She looked up then, surprise widening her dark eyes, and let out a blood-curdling scream. "Help! Police—Help!" She backed away from him, still screaming and started toward a blue-uniformed subway guard.

him! What was so frightening about him?

He puzzled and groused over that problem while he drank two cups of coffee in a little place across the street. He didn't get the answer until he reached into his pocket for his wallet to pay his check. The wallet was gone.

Jeff remembered the appealing way her dark eyes had held his when she was thrown on his chest on the platform—remembered those pretty little white hands as they clung to his lapel—tugging at his heart strings—and his wallet.

LET'S TALK ABOUT You

—BY CHARLES B. ROTH—

Tact—A Daily Need

One of the chief qualities of those whom you like and admire is a quality known as tact.

Chances are that in your lifetime you've known very few men and women who were completely tactful. But haven't you known scores and scores who were not?

You know the kind I mean—men and women who always are saying untactful things that make you unhappy, that fill you with doubts about yourself, that give you moments when you wonder whether there is such a thing as a kindly person in the world.

Tact is without doubt the essence of charm, graciousness and of gentleness. But do you know what it is?

It's merely the perception of what to do or say under delicate or difficult circumstances. That's a definition of tact. But tact is much more than a definition really.

Tact is really a way of life. You can't be tactful unless you are thinking about other people, about what they like, about their rights and feelings more than you think about your own.

The real value of tact in your life is that it relieves tension and glosses over situations that might endanger friendships or cause you to lose self-respect in the eyes of other persons. If you have tact, you balance both sides and never willfully offend another person.

At the risk of appearing untactful, let me tell you that no one ever is born with tact, but everyone who ever had it acquired it. And you can acquire it just as easily and just as surely as anyone else can. Do you want to know how?

I've already hinted at that earlier in this article. I hinted at this when I said that if you wanted to be tactful you had to think more about the other person than you think about yourself. And that's the advice I am going to give you now.

Think of that other person, try to see his viewpoint, try to see what his likes and dislikes are. Ask yourself what you would do if your respective roles were reversed. And then when you express yourself either by word or action, express yourself in unselfishness in the way you think he would like you to.

SCRIPTURE: Malachi
DEVOTIONAL READING: Luke 3:3-6, 15-17.

Malachi Demands Sincere Religion

Lesson for May 16, 1948

GET ready for some straight talk in next Sunday's lesson. Malachi reveals the dark picture of unrequited love, polluted offerings, impious priests, unfaithful husbands. You wonder if Sam Jones has come back to life. He begins by crying.

"The burden of the word of the Lord to Israel by Malachi." We shall miss the entire meaning of this lesson if we fail to read every word of the Book of Malachi. We cannot claim any of the promises of a better day, as indicated in the latter section of Malachi unless and until we deal with such hypocrisy as may infest our lives today, even as the priests and people were consumed with iniquity when Malachi prophesied unto them.

GIVING OUR BEST TO GOD
"A SON honoureth his father, if then I be a father, where is mine honour? and if I be a master, where is my fear?" Malachi 1:6.

How can God bring good out of evil, when his people hold back their best from him? Let us bring it closer home, and ask, How can our earthly parents do their best for us, when we give them half-hearted allegiance?

OUR BEST IN WORSHIP

PASSAGES in the first, second and third chapters of Malachi reveal the lack of sincerity on the part of the priests in the worship which they offered and which they taught the people to offer. Here we see that unclean hands can never bring an acceptable offering unto the Lord. He looketh on the heart. He knows what is in man.

Using the house of God to make a show before men was one of the shameful evils of the priests in the days of Malachi. It did not fool God then, nor will it fool him today. Unless our worship is an expression of something fine and sincere, he will not accept it.

THE DAY OF RECKONING

"BEHOLD, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me; and the Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in . . . But who shall abide the day of his coming?"

One would think that such words of warning would have brought the priests and the people to their senses in humble contrition before God; but they continued to disregard the words of God's messenger.

"For, behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch."

Thus did God warn. And the day of reckoning did come—a day in which priests and people went down beneath the chariot wheels of the invaders. And once again the warnings of God, though despised, were fulfilled to the last word in the terrible punishment upon those who forgot him.

THE PROMISE TO THE FAITHFUL

BUT God does not forget those who truly love him, and thus the Book of Malachi closes with the words of promise to the faithful. "But unto you that fear my name shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings; and ye shall go forth, and grow up as calves of the stall," Malachi 4:2.

The remnants of those who remained true to God in the midst of a wicked generation were used to perpetuate his witness in the earth. The dark days of persecution could not put out the light of his presence and peace.

Let us pause as we study this Book of Malachi and search our own souls, lest we be guilty of the hypocrisy which destroyed the people in the long ago. With every strand of strength which he grants us, let us do with our might what our hands find to do, and the peace that passeth all understanding will be our portion.

"And all flesh shall see the salvation of the Lord."

Kathleen Norris Says:

Platonic Friendship Is Impossible

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features

The man is unmarried, successful, an artist. He has done various magazine illustrations with Winnie as model.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"HAS a wife, 33, with two small sons, any right to a so-called platonic friendship with an attractive man who sees her all the time, but is almost a stranger to her husband?" asks Judd McLeod, from Philadelphia.

"Winnifred," his letter goes on, "used to talk things over with me at dinner, and review the events of the day. Nowadays she lunches with her women friends or with this particular man, coming home dreamy and silent; her interests are no longer mine and mine evidently are not hers. She is always kind and a good housekeeper, but she insists that a woman does not become a man's property or chattel, as she puts it, by marrying him, and that she has a right to any friendships that she chooses. She argues that a man and a woman may have a perfectly safe friendship, with self-respect on both sides. She quotes this man to me as agreeing with her, which drives me wild. The man is unmarried, successful, an artist. He has done various magazine illustrations with Winnie as model. She admits that she likes him thoroughly but denies that there is a criticizable word or look between them."

"Now I am not," Judd goes on, "a jealous man. But it is slowly driving me insane, this dividing a wife. She comes home to me at night, sure. She pours my breakfast coffee, kisses the boys and me goodby in the morning. Then she gets the house into perfect order, telephones to market, tailor, writes checks for gas or dentist, and then makes herself look smart and lovely, and is off for the real business of the day."

"Lunch at the studio, chatter with the other women who come in, and the constant companionship of the man I will call Max. I know she does a certain amount of secretary work for him, darns his socks, deposits his money in the bank, discusses his plans."

They Are Only Friends

"She has told me more than once that there is nothing actually 'wrong' between her and Max. They are just good friends. And I've said I wouldn't stand for it, and I won't. But what can I do? I've always loved my home, my wife and my children; am I to give them all up now and live alone? I feel so helpless, for Winnie isn't a child; she knows exactly what is wrong; she'd leave me if I tried to pull anything like this on her and yet she goes on as if it were a game. I want to save my home and happiness if I can. What's the answer?"

Unfortunately, Judd, the answer lies in the terrible power we have over those who love us and the power they have over us. If anyone—husband, wife, child, mother—chooses to abuse that power, the injured person is helpless. A cruel or neglected mother, a gambling, drinking husband or, as in this case, a cold and selfish wife, can wreck as many lives as her husband's or her own come in contact with, and there is little to be done.

That there is no mere physical infidelity doesn't much affect the situation.

SELFISH WIFE

Winnie, an attractive model, insists upon her right to maintain a friendship with an artist for whom she poses. She informs her husband, Judd, that she likes the painter but there is nothing to mar the platonic relationship between them. Winnie's contention is that a wife has the prerogative to choose her own friends even though they are of the opposite sex.

Her husband argues that while he believes Winnie is faithful to him, it is a source of discomfiting uneasiness to know that the woman whom he loves spends a good portion of the day in the company of a man whom she admittedly likes.

Miss Norris plots a drastic course for Judd. The only way, she advises, in which Judd can obtain peace of mind is by bringing the issue to a dramatic climax.

Winnie shames, hurts, injures you just as completely in the course she is following, showing you every hour how little she cares either for you, your dignity, your rights and your children's future.

Don't Make Threats

Threats of divorce here would be wasted, and very probably an appeal to Max would be wasted, too. It would only make Winnie feel once more her own power and Max more sure of his irresistible charm.

But I knew of one case of the kind that was dissipated like summer mist when the husband went to the lover and suggested that he promise to marry the wife as soon as a divorce freed her. The lover precipitately withdrew.

In another quite similar case the husband insisted upon a meeting with the other two, told his wife in the other man's presence that he was willing to surrender her but not his young daughter, and startled the lover into a series of weak admissions to the effect that they never had meant anything serious—that this was ridiculous—that nothing had been wrong—it was just friendship.

Eventually the husband took home a wife raging with anger, not against him, but against the wavering lover who would not face the results of the supposedly harmless platonic friendship.

There is no such thing as a platonic friendship between an attractive young woman and a sentimental artist. But also, Judd, there is no cure for the vain, shallow wife who acts as Winnie is acting. If it is not Max, it will be someone else. She is not trying to build up shared interests with you, with her boys. These have lost all flavor for her. She will continue to seek more stimulating contacts and, since she has no conscience in the matter, it is no use to appeal to her conscience and, since she has no heart, there is no use in appealing to her heart.

I Think That God is Proud

Grace Noll Crowell

I THINK that God is proud of those who bear

A sorrow bravely—proud indeed of them Who walk straight through the dark to find Him there

And kneel in faith to touch His garment's hem.

Oh, proud of them who lift their heads to shake

Away the tears from eyes that have grown dim,

Who tighten quivering lips and turn to take The only road they know that leads to Him.

How proud He must be of them—He who knows

All sorrow, and how hard grief is to bear! I think He sees them coming, and He goes

With outstretched arms and hands to meet them there,

And with a look, a touch on hand or head,

Each finds his hurt heart strangely comforted.

What will the future hold for this young war widow and her fatherless son? Will all the widows and orphans of our military dead receive the care and protection they have every right to expect from a grateful nation?

What would our war dead ask of us if they could speak? Would they have need to remind us of our promises? Would they ask us to recall our pledges of everlasting gratitude? Would they question the sincerity of our avowals to remember their sacrifices?

This appeal speaks for the members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States. We count it a privilege to help care for the widows and orphans, and for the country's disabled veterans—the comrades with whom we served on foreign soil or in hostile waters.

In offering the American people the opportunity to buy Buddy Poppies, we are giving our fellow citizens the honor of sharing a solemn obligation. The debt this country will always owe to its war disabled—and to the widows and orphans of its honored dead—belongs to all of us. It's a debt our people can never pay in full but one that will always have first claim upon our sense of honor.

Buddy Poppies are fashioned by disabled veterans in government hospitals. The sale of these symbolic flowers—by voluntary workers—enables us to do those things for the aid and comfort of widows and orphans, and disabled and needy veterans, that civic, state or federal agencies lack the power—or the human touch—to accomplish.

Remember this important fact. The proceeds of the annual sale of Buddy Poppies are devoted exclusively to the welfare needs of veterans and their dependents. Your dime—or your dollar—will help make possible the type of service for which there is no substitute—a service that is born of sincere, personal interest in the well-being of those whose lives have been so painfully disrupted by the circumstances of war.

The men who sleep in war dead graves ask nothing for themselves—least of all—our tears. But their souls will know no peace if we dare betray their faith in our loyalty to their loved ones—and their disabled comrades.

Buy a Buddy Poppy. Gain for yourself the satisfaction of knowing that you have not passed up the chance to "Honor the Dead by Helping the Living."

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

My dear Commander:

The VFW sale of Buddy Poppies is a worthy reminder that the welfare of veterans and their families is of continuing importance.

Supported by this annual poppy sale, the VFW National Home at Eaton Rapids, Michigan is performing a splendid work in behalf of the orphaned children of veterans.

The wearing of a Buddy Poppy this year is an excellent way to express approval and participation.

Very sincerely yours,

CONGRATULATIONS TO YOU, Graduates!

We could be cynical, instead, and offer you sympathy commiseration at this commencement time, but it is too much cynicism already and too little room it. Granted, it isn't a very pretty world right now the one you'll be meeting soon. But it's the only one you have, and perhaps you'll be able to do something about improving it.

Give it a good hard try, anyway, will you?

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: Please give me correct information on the refinishing of enamel, porcelain and glazed surfaces.

ANSWER: If you mean a new porcelain finish, that work cannot be done at home. The hard gloss of the surfaces is baked on at the factory and is impossible to duplicate at home with paint or anything else. Chipped places can be restored with a porcelain patching preparation that is on sale in most hardware stores.

QUESTION: Can linoleum be painted?

ANSWER: Worn linoleum can be painted with any good brand of floor paint or deck enamel, but there is no special kind of paint made for that purpose. For best results all traces of wax should be removed from the linoleum. A striped effect in two colors (two shades of tan are practical) will show dirt less than one solid color.

Precaution Advised In Water Sports by State Health Officer

Seasonal advice to vacationists concerning the proper precautions to be used in water sports was received by The Herald Wednesday from the State Health Department of Dr. George W. Cox, State Health Officer.

Lakes and ponds of unknown depth and streams and unfamiliar currents are often the site of picnics and excursions and the usual lifeguard supervision associated with bathing beaches and commercial swimming pools is, of course, Cox reminded, not available.

"Swimming and water sports are beneficial to good health provided one's physical condition justifies this type of exercise," Dr. Cox asserted. "Nevertheless, they possess dangerous possibilities if the rules of safety are disregarded through carelessness or thoughtlessness."

Dr. Cox outlined the following, simple rules for Hamlin area bathing and swimming safety: At least one hour should lapse after a meal before entering the water; upon the first indication of fatigue, move ashore, and don't re-enter the water; if chilled, leave the water immediately; do not enter the water when overheated; learn to float—this is important; never attempt to rock a boat in a spirit of fun; and never swim in water that may be polluted.

"Outdoor excursions, picnics and swimming parties contribute much to a healthy, happy, normal life," Cox continued. "It is by no means advisable to eliminate these pleasures from our summer program, but it is important that they prove beneficial and not disastrous," he concluded.

COSTS OF PRODUCING YOUR ELECTRIC SERVICE HAVE BEEN GOING.....UP

BUT THE PRICE YOU PAY FOR ELECTRIC SERVICE IS STILL... DOWN!

It's a hard fight!

THE cost of producing electric service is going up... and up! Every-day necessities are taking more and more of Reddy Kilowatt's pay—but he is fighting to keep your electric service the biggest bargain in your family budget.

Fuel is up, materials are up, structures are up, new equipment is up, the average cost per man-hour worked is up; almost everything needed to provide you with electric service is up except the hire of capital. Many people—who are owners either directly or indirectly through savings accounts, insurance policies, trust funds, or similar institutions—are getting less for our use or hire of their savings.

Thus, here is one very important difference between Reddy Kilowatt's services and most other things you buy. While other costs have almost doubled since 1938, the hourly pay of Reddy Kilowatt—average cost per kilowatt-hour for residential use—has come down 17 per cent.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—their life—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Free Service Is Available For Wheat Harvest

E. C. Eaves, manager of the Stamford TEC office which serves Jones, Stone, Haskell and Throckmorton Counties late this week urged farmers and workers to utilize this available free service.

Combine and truck operators planning to follow the harvest should be interested in a special combine and labor guide pamphlet, now available, covering states in the wheat belt. An operator interested in receiving these valuable guides should contact the Stamford Office, located at 125 North Swenson Avenue, write to the TEC, Box 708, Stamford.

Pamphlets will be furnished requested.

Beaver further stated that Employment offices up and down the line through Texas and states to the north would be in position to advise workers and equipment operators both full-time and migratory farm labor in action to serving employers and workers in non-agricultural industries.

Farmers needing farm hand cotton choppers or any other type of workers are urged to contact Stamford TEC office for qualified available workers.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Palestine Trouble Heads for Climax As Arab Nations Prepare to Attack; Vandenberg Gives Warning to Russ

By Bill Schoentgen, WNU Staff Writer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

CLIMAX: Palestine

With a clashing of arms and a babble of alarmed voices, events in Palestine appeared to be piling up for another minor but bloody climax in human history.

This particular crisis had its immediate beginning in a savage attack on the Arab city of Jaffa by members of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground force. Fact that the Irgunists' foray against Jaffa was made in defiance of orders by Haganah, the regular Jewish militia, carried no weight in the rush of incidents that followed.

From Palestine's coastal plain, site of the neighboring cities of Jaffa (Arab) and Tel Aviv (Jewish), the focal point of the disturbances moved swiftly inland to the holy city of Jerusalem.

Arabs and Jews hastily deployed their on-the-scene forces in preparation for what stacked up to be a major battle for possession of Jerusalem. Facing each other across a scant 200 yards of no-man's land, each side had its eyes fixed on the strategic Alamein camp which the British were evacuating.

But that wasn't all. It soon became apparent that the Arab league nations surrounding Palestine did not intend to stay out of this fight.

Reports were current that six Arab nations had decided to invade the Holy Land with ground, sea and air forces before the British ended their mandate on May 15.

The whole thing was shaping up in the form of a more or less total Arab effort to crush completely the Jewish intention of creating a Zionist state in Palestine.

Worried United Nations delegates, meanwhile, cast about for a means to prevent the inevitable carnage, or at least to preserve the city of Jerusalem.

France pushed its sponsorship of a heavily-armed volunteer U. N. police corps to safeguard Jerusalem. Hint of the make-up of such a force was given in the suggestion that it might include 100 New York police volunteers, but no Russians. This protective army would number from 500 to 800 members.

While the Palestine situation leaped into a frantic state of flux, the United States kept discreetly out of it all in conformance to its recently adopted policy of apparent disinterest to what happens in the Holy Land.

DEFIANCE: Two Issues

In a surprise speech at a dinner given by Michigan chambers of commerce for the state's congressional delegation, Sen. Arthur Vandenberg served notice on Russia that:

1. The United States may join western Europe in a military alliance against Communist aggression, and

2. "We shall not surrender to Communist conspiracies in the United States."

Thus, the chief Republican proponent of bi-partisan foreign policy split the rind on two issues which, like grapefruit, will come more and more to be in the public eye as this year wears on.

Simply stated, those two issues are: Whether the U. S. should line up militarily alongside the recently formed union of western European nations, and whether the Communist party should be outlawed in this country.

They could become decisive issues in the presidential campaign. Indeed, Harold Stassen already has introduced one of them by coming out bluntly in favor of outlawing Communists in the U. S.

Vandenberg said, "We are suicidal fools if we do not root out and destroy any treason at home which may dream of bringing world revolution to the United States."

The Michigan senator only hinted at a U. S. military alliance with western Europe, but his remarks hardly could be misconstrued.

What Vandenberg didn't say is that while the U. S. has no formal or official role in the union of western European nations, American aid and support, military-wise, of that union almost inevitably is implied.

Whether or not this nation will grant that assurance will come to be a towering question in the public mind soon.

SKY-HIGH: Bombing

A team of air force and army ordnance men is seeking better methods of hitting pin-point bomb targets from extremely high altitudes, out of reach of most anti-aircraft guns or fighter planes.

This joint organization is conducting most of its secret tests in the California desert at Muroc air base. Its assignment is to carry out research in bombing techniques, particularly at high altitudes.

Target

Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers (CIO), was seriously wounded when he was shot by an unknown assailant who fired a shotgun at him through the window of his Detroit home. Communists were suspected of being behind the attack because of Reuther's strong opposition to them in the union.

MINERS: Temporary

Let not the public be deceived by the spell of quiet that is reigning in the nation's soft coal mines and the temporary evaporation of John L. Lewis from the stage.

As it looks now, this peaceful situation is good only until June 30. Even while the miners continue to chop coal in the pits, they make it clear that they expect to go back to their fishing on that date.

June 30 is the day the present wage agreement between the United Mine Workers and the coal operators expires. It is possible, of course, that a new agreement may be reached before then, but it is practically impossible to find anyone who thinks so.

After Lewis' tussle with Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough in which he and the union were fined a total of $1,420,000, the miners went back to work after hearing John L.'s "wish" that they do so. This, however, is regarded as merely a temporary truce.

One of the reasons advanced for Lewis' cantankerous delay in coming to terms on the pension dispute was that the mine leader was eking out the work stoppage as long as possible in order to deplete the nation's coal reserves and so put himself in a better bargaining position when the contract negotiations came up.

That he accomplished that end there is no gainsaying. Coal stocks went down almost to zero all over the country, resulting in curtailment of steel production, a cut in rail travel and various major and minor industrial shutdowns.

It is a fact, too, that industry will not have recovered its balance sufficiently by June 30 to cope adequately with whatever emergency Lewis might precipitate this time.

FOOD PRICES: Logical

Not that it makes it any easier to pay the grocery bill, but the reasons why food prices are so high are no mystery.

U. S. has been channelling food and resources into foreign countries at a rate and volume never before approached. Also, every American able to digest solid food is eating 17 per cent more than he did before the war.

Finally, until just recently, consumers have been spending their money on food because there was nothing much else available to buy.

Those conclusions were reached by University of Wisconsin economists after an investigation into the causes of current high price levels.

Center of the whole spiral are grain prices. Strong exports of corn and wheat caused an upswing in prices on the commodity markets. More expensive grains cause prices of flour, bread, ham, pork loin and rib roasts to go up.

OREGON: Next Up

After whirling breezily through Ohio to the thorough disgruntlement of Sen. Robert Taft, campaigning Harold E. Stassen set his political sights on the May 21 Oregon primary election where he was due to joust with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for that state's Republican convention delegates.

In a kick-off address in Portland Stassen refurbished his foreign and domestic policies for the edification of Oregon voters who will elect the 12-member GOP delegation. Stassen was taking his Oregon campaign seriously because a large measure of importance was being attached to the election insofar as it would provide the first test of West coast opinion on Republican presidential contenders.

SHORTAGE: Farm Machinery

Behind the present shortage of farm machinery in the U. S. lies a now all-too-familiar story: More such machinery is being produced than ever before but it isn't enough to meet the demand.

Waiting list for farm machinery is phenomenally long, yet 131 per cent more tractors, cream separators and other pieces of farm equipment were produced in 1947 than were available in 1939.

Case of the Nazi Reception, Or Misleading Propaganda

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON--Last month there was a memorandum on my desk from the department of the army addressed to "all former war correspondents, subject: Army Day, 1948." It suggested that perhaps I had a war story that stood out in my mind that I would like to relate as an Army Day feature. The memorandum didn't state which war was preferred, if any, but I supposed that it didn't matter so long as it wasn't the next one.

I reported the landing on the Normandy beaches, the Battle of the Bulge and many of the other important events of the last war—from a microphone in Washington; my connection with World War I was less vicarious; my experiences during earlier conflicts such as San Juan, Gettysburg, Chapultepec, Yorktown and Hastings are a little hazy.

Therefore I decided that the department of the army might permit me to relate an adventure which provided a little relief in 1939, in the nervous interlude, known as the "phony war," before the real storm broke. It went something like this:

It happened at Wesermuende, the German air and naval base, shortly after Britain and France had declared war on Germany. American correspondents still had considerable freedom, and I had managed to wrangle permission to interview the first British fliers shot down by the Germans. I did, but that isn't this story.

For all the careful German preparations for war, there was still a certain amount of confusion in the office of propaganda under the highly efficient father of lies, Dr. Goebbels, but I managed to get the use of a German army transport plane to fly me (with a German radio man) from Berlin to Wesermuende.

he war was roaring westward into Poland and the great Tempelhof airport in Berlin was all but deserted when we arrived before dawn and were escorted with alacrity, and not a little wonderment, to our transport which already was warming up. We had been up all night and my colleague immediately fell asleep on a pile of parachute equipment. As soon as dawn broke, I busied myself watching the anti-aircraft batteries in the fields surrounding Berlin, gun pits in fields surrounded by complacent, cud-chewing cows who were, like the rest of the bemused population, unaware of what the Fuehrer was about to bring down on them.

For some reason we flew low, almost scratching our wings on the church steeples. At last my companion awoke. We were approaching the airport. It was a lively spot. As we drew nearer, we could see a detachment of marines which came to attention as we approached. A half dozen staff cars were drawn up in a semi-circle, balanced by blue-jackets and ground personnel of the air force.

"We're lucky," my companion remarked, "some big brass must be coming, we'll see a parade." No other plane was visible though, as we circled a couple of times over the docks, thick with ships including the long-lost Europa, back on her dash from Murmansk. Finally we landed a couple of yards from the military formation which by now was drawn up at attention. We were a little embarrassed, for we were in plain sight of the imposing array, and were afraid we might suddenly bump into the visiting dignitary—and we were hatless and unshaven. I let my companion go ahead. There was no place to go, however, but in the direction of the naval detachment and their commanding officer. It later developed he was the commander of the base, a tall, slim, correct naval officer, perhaps a little nervous, though we were too nervous ourselves to realize it at the moment.

We advanced, like pups approaching a porcupine. A command rang out. The troops snapped to present arms, the officer saluted and drew a manuscript from his tunic, something new to me in military procedure—all I could think of was a painting of General Washington reading a message to his troops (and I always had thought that was a flight of the artist's fancy).

The officer began reading—it was a message of welcome all right. Finally, my companion (the was half-English, which may explain his fortitude) interrupted: "There must be some mistake. We are two radio correspondents."

The commander bowed, looked abashed, glanced over our heads toward the plane.

"But where are the other gentlemen?" he wanted to know.

"There are just two of us," we replied.

"But the minister of propaganda? Who is representing him? We were notified by the department—a special plane—the truck for the baggage—"

The commander bowed, looked abashed, glanced over our heads toward the plane.

"But where are the other gentlemen?" he wanted to know.

"There are just two of us," we replied.

We explained briefly, and waited for the skies to fall. They didn't. The officer continued his speech without even dropping his monocle—just to be sure—editing it slightly to make it apply as he went. There was no question that he thought we were going to be, certainly OUGHT to be Goebbels.

The formation melted away, the truck which had been requested to transport sound equipment started to load, all but one of the staff cars slunk away. There was only one red face, the airforce commander's, and he felt not embarrassed, but rage. This was a purely military field and I had held up the German war effort for half a morning, thus contributing my bit to Allied victory even before America was in the war.

For the rest, the only significant memory, except for my interview with those British boys, was the questioning by the German officers. Obviously they didn't share the complacent assurance of victory of the Nazi higher-ups—they remembered World War I.

Today the greatest danger to the peace is the possibility that the will, the purpose, the power of the United States will not be understood in time by the Russian command—that they will fail to recognize the risk of self-annihilation they are taking in their "cold war," as the Kaiser and Hitler failed to realize it.

Roses, But Never A Spray of Yew

There are many good garden books, and I for one had about come to the conclusion that the final word on gardening had been written, when along came the Woman's Home Companion Garden Book (P. F. Collier and Son corporation, publisher, New York City) with many new angles. Edited by John C. Wister, director of the Arthur Hoyt Scott horticultural foundation, Swarthmore college, this book speaks with authority.

"It is correct," it states on page 472, "to speak of narcissus, and also correct to use the English term daffodil for all species and varieties of narcissus. There is confusion about this, a popular impression being that daffodils are the yellow kind, and narcissus the white kinds. There also has been confusion about the name jonquil. All the daffodils of the jonquil group are distinguished by their narrow, garlic-like foliage and by their characteristic bright yellow color, which is the same shade throughout the flower."

All of this interested me mightily as I had just been studying a photograph of a clump of narcissus in a popular magazine's "name this picture" contest. The leaves on the plant shown were broad, though the answer given by the editor was "jonquil." Obviously, even contest editors may err.

The narcissus discussion is a sample of Editor Wister's directness in this new garden book and there is more like it on every page.

Not the least interesting writing in this book is the foreword by the well-loved Liberty Hyde Bailey, dean of all gardeners, whose accomplishments need no eulogy here.

Another intriguing feature is the discussion and diagramming of various geographic areas according to their geological and climatic conditions. Most of us have been frost-bitten too often for comfort by blindly following the usual maps.

Additional data and measuring qualities have been added to long-established material in making a broader and yet more personal presentation of his problems to the gardener in any given section of the United States and Canada. The net result is the clarification of many heretofore-vague statements.

It would be unfair to other excellent books to say that this is the best garden book yet published. In some ways it excels all others, but still there are other volumes which may contain more information on specific subjects.

Perhaps the way to size up this 1,000-page volume is to say that regardless of whatever other gardening books you own, you need this one too if you seek fresh angles on your favorite hobby.

With its fine cover and paper stock, its 24 photographic pages in full color, its 56 pages of black and white illustrations and more than 100 how-to-do-it pictures, the Woman's Home Companion Garden Book is completely satisfying.

THERE seems to be a general opinion that the opening of a big-league season is an interesting item to only 10 cities in which the 16 clubs are parked. Nothing could be farther off the track of truth.

The 16 big-league teams are largely made up of ballplayers from the hamlets and the villages of the country who take a deep pride in the exploits of a native son. The big-league cities are only the spectators. They rarely contribute any of the talent needed to carry on the show.

Here are a few examples: Ewell Blackwell from San Dimas, Calif.; Phil Cavaretta, Wilmette, Ill.; Bill Nicholson, Chestertown, Md.; Larry Jansen, Forest Grove, Ore.; Harry Walker, Leeds, Ala.; Bob Feller, Van Meter, Iowa; George Kell, Swifton, Ark.; Phil Marchedon, Penitang, Ont.; Bill Johnson, Montclair, N. J.; Joe DiMaggio, Dom DiMaggio, Martinez, Calif.; and Bobby Doerr from Illane, Ore.

After all, Ty Cobb came from Royston, Ga.; Mathewson from Factoryville, Pa.; Lajoie from Woonsocket, Cy Young and Alexander from outposts in Ohio and Nebraska.

Baseball is a small-town game—a village enterprise. There is little room for sandlots in the big cities. The cities only supply the spectators. They haven't time to bother about the kids who, in the main, can live or die unless they happen to be lucky enough to live under the rule of Commissioner Wallander of New York, who is vitally interested in their careers. There are other Commissioner Wallanders now—but not enough of them.

In the last few years, baseball has taken on a tremendous lift. It broke all attendance records in 1946. It broke these records again in 1947. It is my belief the old game will set a new cluster of marks in 1948.

This season, if one can judge from the spring hullabaloo should be baseball's all-time record year as far as attendance goes. The two leagues should pass the 20 million mark with something to spare. Which finds us hailing the Charley Ebbets of 30 years ago as he remarked: "Baseball is in its infancy."

Pennant Predictions

AMERICAN LEAGUE
No. 1: New York Yankees.
No. 2: Boston Red Sox.
No. 3: Detroit Tigers.
No. 4: Cleveland Indians.
No. 5: Philadelphia Athletics.
No. 6: Browns, White Sox and Senators, neck and neck, for last place.

Under the sound leadership of Bucky Harris, the Yankees are picked to repeat for one solid reason—they look to be the most solid all-around team in the race.

Early buds and blossoms are a far cry from the yellow and crimson leaves of late September, so in making a selection one must gamble with fate and the fortunes of war, the breaks of the game, through the five and a half months beyond.

The Red Sox are as good as the Yankees, perhaps a shade better, up to the important matter of pitching and strong reserves.

With their excellent pitching, the Tigers might win through the right and left arms Steve O'Neil can throw against the enemy. But the Tigers have neither an infield nor an outfield to match either the Yankees or the Red Sox.

Cleveland's improved Indians still belong in fourth place as Connie Mack's Athletics have a death grip on the top of the second division.

The White Sox, Senators and Browns are strictly minor league clubs who have no place in a big league.

They are out to live or make money on the four strong clubs where, on their own, they couldn't draw 300 thousand people. They are the league's chiselers. They should offer a spectacular battle for last place in the dizzy dip to the subway title. So we can forget about them as debris broom-men sweep away the debris.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

No. 1: St. Louis Cardinals.
No. 2: Brooklyn Dodgers.
No. 3: Boston Braves.
No. 4: New York Giants.
No. 5: Cincinnati Reds.
No. 6: Pittsburgh Pirates.
No. 7: Chicago Cubs.
No. 8: Philadelphia Phillies.

This is a very different picture from the American league layout. It will be a much better and much tighter race from top to bottom. There certainly should be a much closer scramble among the Cardinals, Dodgers and Braves than the younger league can give you.

In picking the Cardinals over the Dodgers and Braves, one has to gamble with fate—a kind of fate that will leave most of Eddie Dyer's veteran athletes intact.

The Cardinals, in their first-line strength, have the best team in their league, but their reserves are weak and thin. They can afford few reverses. Their catching is none too hot. But they have a pitching staff that should be well ahead of all others—Dickson, Munger, Brecheen, Pollet, Hearn, Brazle and at least two others who can win a lot of games.

Keep glass coffee makers fresh and sweet by frequently rinsing upper and lower bowls in baking soda solution. Rinse filters in solution (one tablespoon of soda to a cup of water), let dry, then rinse before using.

Roast meats will carve more easily if allowed to "set" a few minutes after they are taken from the oven. High ceilings appear lower when painted a dark, rich color—such as red or royal blue.

Open wrapper of wrapped bread carefully on one end. Replace unused slices of bread and roll wrapper down until; bread will remain fresh until last crust is used.

THE IDENTITY OF THE CHURCH

The Church is built according to a pattern (Hebrew 8:5) and we are workers or builders together with God. (I Cor. 3:8-9)

We as Christians must follow God's pattern revealed through the teachings of Christ and the Apostles. (Matthew 28:18-20) The word of God is the measuring rod. (Rev. 11:1) When God's word is the guide, the house is built upon the rock and will stand. (Matthew 7:24-27)

To corrupt God's plan in ANY point is to lost identity. An example of this is the Ephesian church. (Rev. 2:4)

GREETINGS

To newspaper people the symbol "30" denotes the end of a story; but more than that, it has taken on a half-mystical aura as a term signifying the ending of anything. And there is another symbol that appears at the bottom of every page of a story except the last. It is simply the word "more."

Your formal education may be completed now. For some of you, undoubtedly it is. That's "30." But a new story is beginning — a yarn of continuing work, an expanding mind and viewpoint, a gathering of experience, responsibilities and increased knowledge. It will have many pages, and at the bottom of every one will be written "more... more... more..."

SUBWAY LOCHINVAR

By PAT HILKER

JEFF had a pocketful of nickels, but he followed her to the change booth. He stood behind her in the line, his eyes noting every detail from her soft, short black curls to her doll-size suede shoes. He even approved of her hat, a warm plum color the exact shade of coat and shoes.

He was so busy with his survey that he failed to notice the nickel she left in the worn wooden cup in the shelf.

"Hey, Lady," the money-changer yelled after her, "You left your change!"

She must not have heard the man, for she was already through the turnstile and was disappearing down the stairs to the platform. Jeff tried to make his voice sound casual as he told the man, "I'll give it to her."

The man grinned. "Sure don't blame you."

Jeff fumbled in his haste to get through the turnstile. He followed her downstairs and spotted her in the middle of the crowd on the platform, watching the F train roll in.

"Your change," he panted, "You left your change at the booth."

She stared up at him, and the impact of the incredibly dark velvety eyes tossed his heart into some rosy world far, far away. Desperately he searched for the smooth, brilliant, exactly right thing he never could think to say until it was too late. But, "You left your change," he repeated inanely, and held out the nickel.

"Why, thank you very much," she said, and her voice was just what it should have been—low and soft and sweet. "How nice of you to chase after me!"

"Oh, that's all right," he said. "I . . . I . . ." and there he stuck.

She smiled rather vaguely at him, waited a minute, and started to turn away when he failed to think of anything else to say.

"Wait, please!" he shouted at her. He didn't need to shout—he was right beside her—so close that the crowd rushing out of the train threw her against him. For a breathless moment, he saw her tiny hand clutch at his coat, smelled the wonderful sweetness of her perfume as she laughed up at him. He supported her elbows and helped her catch her balance.

"This seems to be your day for rescuing me," she said, "Thanks again."

Before he could say another word, she was inside the car and the door was closing. Then he realized he hadn't found out her name or anything about her except that her left hand was innocent of rings—wedding or otherwise.

He darted down the platform and found a last late-closing door. It didn't help much to know that he was on the same train with her—one that he had no business on. It was jammed and he struggled hopelessly to get back to her car. He died a thousand deaths at 34th street, 23rd and 14th, afraid she would get off and he would miss her in the mob.

It happened at West 4th street, but he saw her in time and bounded after her, down the stairs to the Sixth avenue platform, barely keeping her in sight.

He thought she looked right at him, just before she wheeled and ran back up the stairs. "Hope she isn't afraid of me—might peg me for a wolf," he told himself. "No—that's silly! Probably didn't even see me." He chased back up the stairs—to find that she was not on the downtown platform. He looked behind the news stand, at both ends of the long platform—she was not in sight.

It dawned on him to look across the tracks at the uptown platform—where he saw her, just before the train pulled in.

He skidded all the way down the stairs, landing in an ungraceful and thoroughly disgruntled heap at the bottom. By the time he untangled his long arms and legs and got across the mezzanine floor and back up the uptown stairs, the train was pulling out and she was gone.

He was sunk, stymied, and he didn't have the remotest chance of catching her—of finding out what any half-wit should have asked her before he returned the precious

The guard looked at her with understanding, looked grimly at Jeff and had a firm grip on Jeff's collar an instant later. "Bothering the lady, eh? Why you—I ought to have you thrown in the jug!"

In about 40 seconds, Jeff was standing dazed and furious outside the subway station, back where he had first maneuvered to walk close to the lovely little black-haired stranger.

Why had she raised such a rumpus? She must have seen him before, when she doubled back at West 4th—she must have run away from nickel. Who was she? Where did she live? Did she travel the same route every day? Did she work—did she—didn't have the slightest clue as to how to find her again—ever.

Cursing himself for a blithering idiot, he stepped on the next train that came along. Might as well go back to 42nd street and ride his usual train—back to his lonely room and his lonelier thoughts.

Of course he decided to be at that change booth every day for the rest of his life, if necessary, until he found her again. He pondered an ad to run in the Times: "Will the beautiful lady with the dark eyes who forgot a nickel at the change booth at 42nd street on the night of . . ."

Back at 42nd street, he stood gloomily staring at her for several minutes before he realized it. She was standing on the downtown platform again, right where he had first muffed his chances with this girl he had dreamed all of his life of some day meeting. She was talking to a man, so absorbed that she didn't even glance in his direction.

Once more Jeff dashed upstairs, downstairs and along the platform until at last he could reach out and grasp her arm.

She looked up then, surprise widening her dark eyes, and let out a blood-curdling scream. "Help! Police—Help!" She backed away from him, still screaming and started toward a blue-uniformed subway guard.

I Think That God is Proud

Grace Noll Crowell

I THINK that God is proud of those who bear
A sorrow bravely—proud indeed of them
Who walk straight through the dark to find Him there
And kneel in faith to touch His garment's hem.
Oh, proud of them who lift their heads to shake
Away the tears from eyes that have grown dim,
Who tighten quivering lips and turn to take
The only road they know that leads to Him.

How proud He must be of them—He who knows
All sorrow, and how hard grief is to bear!
I think He sees them coming, and He goes
With outstretched arms and hands to meet them there,
And with a look, a touch on hand or head,
Each finds his hurt heart strangely comforted.

THE BIBLE TODAY

International Uniform Sunday School Lesson
By LOUIE C. NEWTON, D.D.

SCRIPTURE: Malachi
DEVOTIONAL READING: Luke 3:3-6, 15-17

Malachi Demands Sincere Religion

Lesson for May 16, 1948

GET ready for some straight talk in next Sunday's lesson. Malachi reveals the dark picture of unrequited love, polluted offerings, impious priests, unfaithful husbands. You wonder if Sam Jones has come back to life. He begins by crying, "The burden of the word of the Lord to Israel by Malachi." We shall miss the entire meaning of this lesson if we fail to read every word of the Book of Malachi. We cannot claim any of the promises of a better day, as indicated in the latter section of Malachi unless and until we deal with such hypocrisy as may infest our lives today, even as the priests and people were consumed with iniquity when Malachi prophesied unto them.

GIVING OUR BEST TO GOD

"A SON honoureth his father, and a servant his master; if then I be a father, where is mine honour? and if I be a master, where is my fear?" Malachi 1:6.

How can God bring good out of evil, when his people hold back their best from him? Let us bring it closer home, and ask, How can our earthly parents do their best for us, when we give them half-hearted allegiance?

OUR BEST IN WORSHIP

PASSAGES in the first, second and third chapters of Malachi reveal the lack of sincerity on the part of the priests in the worship which they offered and which they taught the people to offer. Here we see that unclean hands can never bring an acceptable offering unto the Lord. He looketh on the heart. He knows what is in man.

Using the house of God to make a show before men was one of the shameful evils of the priests in the days of Malachi. It did not fool God then, nor will it fool him today. Unless our worship is an expression of something fine and sincere, he will not accept it.

THE DAY OF RECKONING

"BEHOLD, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me; and the Lord, whom ye seek, shall suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in . . . But who shall abide the day of his coming?"

One would think that such words of warning would have brought the priests and the people to their senses in humble contrition before God; but they continued to disregard the words of God's messenger.

"For, behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch."

Thus did God warn. And the day of reckoning did come—a day in which priests and people went down beneath the chariot wheels of the invaders. And once again the warnings of God, though despised, were fulfilled to the last word in the terrible punishment upon those who forgot him.

THE PROMISE TO THE FAITHFUL

BUT God does not forget those who truly love him, and thus the Book of Malachi closes with the words of promise to the faithful. "But unto you that fear my name shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings; and ye shall go forth, and grow up as calves of the stall," Malachi 4:2.

The remnants of those who remained true to God in the midst of a wicked generation were used to perpetuate his witness in the earth. The dark days of persecution could not put out the light of his presence and peace.

Let us pause as we study this Book of Malachi and search our own souls, lest we be guilty of the hypocrisy which destroyed the people in the long ago. With every strand of strength which he grants us, let us do with our might what our hands find to do, and the peace that passeth all understanding will be our portion.

"And all flesh shall see the salvation of the Lord."

Kathleen Norris Says:

Platonic Friendship Is Impossible

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features

The man is unmarried, successful, an artist. He has done various magazine illustrations with Winnie as model.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

"HAS a wife, 33, with two small sons, any right to a so-called platonic friendship with an attractive man who sees her all the time, but is almost a stranger to her husband?" asks Judd McLeod, from Philadelphia.

"Winnifred," his letter goes on, "used to talk things over with me at dinner, and review the events of the day. Nowadays she lunches with her women friends or with this particular man, coming home dreamy and silent; her interests are no longer mine and mine evidently are not hers. She is always kind and a good housekeeper, but she insists that a woman does not become a man's property or chattel, as she puts it, by marrying him, and that she has a right to any friendships that she chooses. She argues that a man and a woman may have a perfectly safe friendship, with self-respect on both sides. She quotes this man to me as agreeing with her, which drives me wild. The man is unmarried, successful, an artist. He has done various magazine illustrations with Winnie as model. She admits that she likes him thoroughly but denies that there is a criticizable word or look between them."

"Now I am not," Judd goes on, "a jealous man. But it is slowly driving me insane, this dividing a wife. She comes home to me at night, sure. She pours my breakfast coffee, kisses the boys and me goodby in the morning. Then she gets the house into perfect order, telephones to market, tailor, writes checks for gas or dentist, and then makes herself look smart and lovely, and is off for the real business of the day."

"Lunch at the studio, chatter with the other women who come in, and the constant companionship of the man I will call Max. I know she does a certain amount of secretarial work for him, darns his socks, deposits his money in the bank, discusses his plans."

They Are Only Friends

"She has told me more than once that there is nothing actually 'wrong' between her and Max. They are just good friends. And I've said I wouldn't stand for it, and I won't. But what can I do? I've always loved my home, my wife and my children; am I to give them all up now and live alone? I feel so helpless, for Winnie isn't a child; she knows exactly what is wrong; she'd leave me if I tried to pull anything like this on her and yet she goes on as if it were a game. I want to save my home and happiness if I can. What's the answer?"

Unfortunately, Judd, the answer lies in the terrible power we have over those who love us: and the power they have over us. If anyone—husband, wife, child, mother—chooses to abuse that power, the injured person is helpless. A cruel or neglected mother, a gambling, drinking husband or, as in this case, a cold and selfish wife, can wreck as many lives as her husband's or her own come in contact with, and there is little to be done.

That there is no mere physical fidelity doesn't much affect the situation.

SELFISH WIFE

Winnie, an attractive model, insists upon her right to maintain a friendship with an artist for whom she poses. She informs her husband, Judd, that she likes the painter but there is nothing to mar the platonic relationship between them. Winnie's contention is that a wife has the prerogative to choose her own friends even though they are of the opposite sex.

Her husband argues that while he believes Winnie is faithful to him, it is a source of discomfiting uneasiness to know that the woman whom he loves spends a good portion of the day in the company of a man whom she admittedly likes.

Miss Norris plots a drastic course for Judd. The only way, she advises, in which Judd can obtain peace of mind is by bringing the issue to a dramatic climax.

Winnie shames, hurts, injures you just as completely in the course she is following, showing you every hour how little she cares either for you, your dignity, your rights and your children's future.

Don't Make Threats

Threats of divorce here would be wasted, and very probably an appeal to Max would be wasted, too. It would only make Winnie feel once more her own power and Max more sure of his irresistible charm.

But I knew of one case of the kind that was dissipated like summer mist when the husband went to the lover and suggested that he promise to marry the wife as soon as divorce freed her. The lover precipitately withdrew.

In another quite similar case the husband insisted upon a meeting with the other two, told his wife in the other man's presence that he was willing to surrender her but not his young daughter, and startled the lover into a series of weak admissions to the effect that they never had meant anything serious—that this was ridiculous—that nothing had been wrong—it was just friendship.

Eventually the husband took home a wife raging with anger, not against him, but against the wavering lover who would not face the results of the supposedly harmless platonic friendship.

There is no such thing as a platonic friendship between an attractive young woman and a sentimental artist. But also, Judd, there is no cure for the vain, shallow wife who acts as Winnie is acting. If it is not Max, it will be someone else. She is not trying to build up shared interests with you, with her boys. These have lost all flavor for her. She will continue to seek more stimulating contacts and, since she has no conscience in the matter, it is no use to appeal to her conscience and, since she has no heart, there is no use in appealing to her heart.

"Do you drink, young man?" "Thanks, Pop—but let's settle this other thing first."

don't use Harsh Laxatives

Keep regular this healthful way—

The juice of a lemon in a glass of water, when taken first thing on arising, is all that most people need to insure prompt, normal elimination.

No more harsh laxatives that irritate the digestive tract and impair nutrition! Lemon in water is good for you!

Generations of Americans have taken lemons for health—and generations of doctors have recommended them. They are rich in vitamin C, supply valuable amounts of B<sub>1</sub> and P. They alkalize, aid digestion.

Not too sharp or sour, lemon in water has a refreshing tang—clears the mouth, wakes you up. It's not a purgative—simply helps your system regulate itself. Try it 10 days. USE CALIFORNIA SUNKIST LEMONS

What will the future hold for this young war widow and her fatherless son? Will all the widows and orphans of our military dead receive the care and protection they have every right to expect from a grateful nation?

What would our war dead ask of us if they could speak? Would they have need to remind us of our promises? Would they ask us to recall our pledges of everlasting gratitude? Would they question the sincerity of our avowals to remember their sacrifices?

This appeal speaks for the members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States. We count it a privilege to help care for the widows and orphans, and for the country's disabled veterans—the comrades with whom we served on foreign soil or in hostile waters.

In offering the American people the opportunity to buy Buddy Poppies, we are giving our fellow citizens the honor of sharing a solemn obligation. The debt this country will always owe to its war disabled—and to the widows and orphans of its honored dead—belongs to all of us. It's a debt our people can never pay in full but one that will always have first claim upon our sense of honor.

Buddy Poppies are fashioned by disabled veterans in government hospitals. The sale of these symbolic flowers—by voluntary workers—enables us to do those things for the aid and comfort of widows and orphans, and disabled and needy veterans, that civic, state or federal agencies lack the power—or the human touch—to accomplish.

Remember this important fact. The proceeds of the annual sale of Buddy Poppies are devoted exclusively to the welfare needs of veterans and their dependents. Your dime—or your dollar—will help make possible the type of service for which there is no substitute—a service that is born of sincere, personal interest in the well-being of those whose lives have been so painfully disrupted by the circumstances of war.

The men who sleep in war dead graves ask nothing for themselves—least of all—our tears. But their souls will know no peace if we dare betray their faith in our loyalty to their loved ones—and their disabled comrades.

Buy a Buddy Poppy. Gain for yourself the satisfaction of knowing that you have not passed up the chance to "Honor the Dead by Helping the Living."

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

My dear Commander:

The VFW sale of Buddy Poppies is a worthy reminder that the welfare of veterans and their families is of continuing importance.

Supported by this annual poppy sale, the VFW National Home at Eaton Rapids, Michigan is performing a splendid work in behalf of the orphaned children of veterans.

The wearing of a Buddy Poppy this year is an excellent way to express approval and participation.

Very sincerely yours,

Harry Truman

We could be cynical, instead, and offer you sympathy commiseration at this commencement time, but it is too much cynicism already and too little room it. Granted, it isn't a very pretty world right now the one you'll be meeting soon. But it's the only one you have, and perhaps you'll be able to do something about improving it.

Give it a good hard try, anyway, will you?

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: Please give me correct information on the refinishing of enamel, porcelain and glazed surfaces.

ANSWER: If you mean a new porcelain finish, that work cannot be done at home. The hard gloss of the surfaces is baked on at the factory and is impossible to duplicate at home with paint or anything else. Chipped places can be restored with a porcelain patching preparation that is on sale in most hardware stores.

QUESTION: Can linoleum be painted?

ANSWER: Worn linoleum can be painted with any good brand of floor paint or deck enamel, but there is no special kind of paint made for that purpose. For best results all traces of wax should be removed from the linoleum. A striped effect in two colors (two shades of tan are practical) will show dirt less than one solid color.

Precaution Advised In Water Sports by State Health Officer

Seasonal advice to vacationists concerning the proper precautions to be used in water sports was received by The Herald Wednesday from the State Health Department of Dr. George W. Cox, State Health Officer.

Lakes and ponds of unknown depth and streams and unfamiliar currents are often the site of picnics and excursions and the usual lifeguard supervision associated with bathing beaches and commercial swimming pools is, of course, Cox reminded, not available.

"Swimming and water sports are beneficial to good health provided one's physical condition justifies this type of exercise," Dr. Cox asserted. "Nevertheless, they possess dangerous possibilities if the rules of safety are disregarded through carelessness or thoughtlessness."

Dr. Cox outlined the following simple rules for Hamlin area bathing and swimming safety: At least one hour should lapse after a meal before entering the water; upon the first indication of fatigue, move ashore, and don't re-enter the water; if chilled, leave the water immediately; do not enter the water when overheated; learn to float—this is important; never attempt to rock a boat in a spirit of fun; and never swim in water that may be polluted.

"Outdoor excursions, picnics and swimming parties contribute much to a healthy, happy, normal life," Cox continued. "It is by no means advisable to eliminate these pleasures from our summer program, but it is important that they prove beneficial and not disastrous," he concluded.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Forgy visited in Mineral Wells Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Forgy of Spur were Sunday guests in the F. E. Forgy home.

Mrs. L. P. Cozzens of Moody is visiting her daughter, Mrs. H. M. Hooper.

W. F. Johnson has returned to a Rotan hospital for treatments for his heart.

COSTS OF PRODUCING YOUR
ELECTRIC SERVICE
HAVE BEEN GOING . . . . UP

BUT THE PRICE
YOU PAY FOR
ELECTRIC SERVICE
IS STILL . . .
DOWN!

It's a hard fight!

THE cost of producing electric service is going up . . . and up! Every-day necessities are taking more and more of Reddy Kilowatt's pay—but he is fighting to keep your electric service the biggest bargain in your family budget.

Fuel is up, materials are up, structures are up, new equipment is up, the average cost per man-hour worked is up; almost everything needed to provide you with electric service is up except the hire of capital. Many people—who are owners either directly or indirectly through savings accounts, insurance policies, trust funds, or similar institutions—are getting less for our use or hire of their savings.

Thus, here is one very important difference between Reddy Kilowatt's services and most other things you buy. While other costs have almost doubled since 1938, the hourly pay of Reddy Kilowatt—average cost per kilowatt-hour for residential use—has come down 17 per cent.

Woman's World

Select Washable, Wearable Clothes for Informal Wear

By Ertta Haley

THERE are many of us who don't consider ourselves dressmakers of any skill, but I've yet to see the woman who doesn't like to make something for herself, even if it's only a simple picnic blouse and skirt.

The materials which have reached the market recently are intriguing enough to bring everyone to their beck and call. You'll see the most delightful cottons, exquisite rayons and nice sleek, cool linens. The colors are everything and more you've desired, so why not just go on a little, if not a big spree, and see the pleasure of sewing something for yourself.

If you like picnics and gardening, you'll be fascinated with the full skirts with their swish of ruffle. If you like sports, you'll certainly want to make a pair of shorts and skirts as well as blouse for your activities. At least you certainly will if you see some of the nice prints available.

Choose your pattern first to fit you and the activity, then choose the fabric to fit the pattern as well as the activity. Let these all combine to make a more attractive you.

Don't feel that you have to finish the garment at one sitting. Cut at one, baste at another and then sew it altogether, leaving the fine finishing touches for another sitting. In this way you won't hurry the work and become careless.

Style Notes for Skirts and Blouses

Skirts are very full this season, even, or especially, if they are the casual cottons. They swirl with action and have tiny waistlines.

Blouses, too, are of great interest, and they boast of the gay nineties look. Collars are very tiny or large.

Make play clothes light . . .

There is nothing much in-between. Shoulder interest in the blouses is modified, they're somehow softer and more extended to give a flattering silhouette.

Stripes and plaids are very good for blouses, and the skirts boast of checks, solids and plaids.

You can't go wrong if you select white because that is one of the big things this season, but white is very effectively combined with black as well as very bright and rich monotonies like royal, kelly and red.

In stripes and plaids the favorite color combinations are salmon and turquoise, lime and lilac as well as gold and gray.

When you look at the picture in playsuits, there are not only very delectable solids that go well with these patterns, but also prints such as you've never seen.

Gay and easy-to-laundry.

If you're the tailored type, stay with the solids in rayon or linen, for they're sleek and cool and always make you look beautiful. If you're more casual, try an all print or a print and solid combination.

Styles in Play Clothes Considered Interesting

Whatever your feelings about the new look, you're certain to like what they're showing in the casual department. You'll find many backless dresses that come with boleros that will make them just right for street wear. Shorts come with halters, and in many cases the skirts that cover them are voluminous. You'll bask in their luxury.

Naturally, if you golf, you'll want a smaller type of skirt, such as a four gored type topped by a halter, or something even more classic. You'll find the boleros very practical and this means that with so many parts to a dress you can mix prints and monotone colors.

Choose that style that will suit your activities, and then play the material with the same thing in mind. If you make the four piece dress I've mentioned, you'll find it

Vacation Bound

For riding or relaxing, Clair McCardell has designed this charming Bermuda cedar costume of wool knitted fabric. The abbreviated riding pants are topped by a striped strapless halter and bolero jacket.

very practical for many needs such as golf, shopping, tennis or the beach.

Perk up the outfit with white pique piping to make the clothes trim and neat. The boleros are enhanced with large collars as well as the new three quarter length sleeves.

Washability is one of the requisites to look for in playsuit material. If, to that, you can add an easy ironing feature, so much the better for keeping spic and span.

Judge Your Workmanship By Professional Standards

The dress, bolero or top should fit at the shoulders without any pulling or straining. The shoulder seam should lie about 1/4 inch back of the center of the shoulder and be absolutely straight from neckline to sleeve seam.

If you are square shouldered you don't need much padding. If the shoulders are round and sloping you'll need just enough padding to make the dress look proper.

If your dress or blouse has a collar, the latter should lie flat without wrinkling. Wrinkles from neckline to shoulder are certainly an indication of tightness somewhere around the neckline, shoulder or sleeve seam.

If the skirt is on the slim side, look for an easy fit over the hips. The slim skirts should be a little longer than full ones to give the fashionable length, but select the length which is best looking for you.

Make your waistline fit properly and don't try to camouflage looseness with a belt as this only makes a messy result.

Armholes should be big enough so that you feel at ease and comfortable. Avoid tight cuffs if your arms are chubby.

FINISHING TOUCHES

In a season where brief jackets are following much the same silhouette, it's the detailing that will add fashion and distinction. There are cleverly cut pockets to add hip interest to a close fitting shortie, flaring cuffs of many cuts and collars that are a foil to bright chiffon scarfs worn knotted about the throat.

Be Smart!

How will you have your foot-wear when summer comes—colored or white? One happy solution is many colors with a touch of white, gay as a Mardi Gras harlequin! Another is pure white linen which you wear white or have dyed to match your favorite suit or dress. Very important, too, are the off whites, such as sand or natural, often in combination with russet leather.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Kabobs Help You Keep Cool
(See recipes below)

Cool Tactics

As soon as warmer weather starts seeping into the house, many a woman asks the all-important question, "How can I keep cool and still cook for the family?"

That is a neat trick, but you can do it, too. The first thing is to plan your menus so there are no long cooking ideas in them. Make a point of not selecting anything that will require more than 30 minutes cooking.

The second is to do most of your work in the cool of the morning, so that you won't be spending too much time right at supper time when it is so warm.

The third is to plan all-cool meals and get the preparation out of the way before hot weather really hits you. There are a number of cool ideas such as meat or meat-fortified salads that can be whipped together early and stored until supper time. Do this once or twice a week and see how nicely it works.

Here are several ideas that won't require much actual cooking preparation. Use them often for variety.

*Kabobs (Serves 6)

2 pounds lamb steak (sliced 3/4 inch thick)
3 tablespoons cooking oil
6 tablespoons lemon juice
1 onion, minced
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 pound mushrooms

Cut lamb into one-inch squares. Combine oil, juice, onion and salt. Pour over lamb and let stand for several hours. Drain lamb and arrange on skewers alternately with mushroom caps. Place four inches below moderate broiler heat and broil 12 to 15 minutes, turning several times. Serve with broiled tomatoes (broiled at same time).

Pork Tenderloin in Sour Cream (Serves 6)

1 1/2 pounds pork tenderloin
Fat
Sour Cream
1 tablespoon flour

Cut tenderloin into one-inch slices and brown in fat. Cover with sour cream and simmer about 20 minutes until tender. Remove meat, add flour to cream and simmer four minutes.

Salisbury Steak (Serves 6)

4 strips bacon
1 1/2 pounds ground chuck or round
1/2 pound ground pork
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper

Chop bacon and mix lightly with meat, onion, green pepper, parsley and seasonings. Shape into cakes and place them three inches under broiler heat. Broil 12 minutes, turning once.

Vegetable Sausage Salad (Serves 6)

1 quart diced cooked potatoes
2 cups cubed salami or Thuringer sausage
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 cups large cooked peas
1 cup chopped celery
1 pimiento, chopped
6 sweet pickles, chopped
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
Mayonnaise and salt

Mix all ingredients together and add enough mayonnaise to moisten, salt to taste and extra vinegar, if desired. Heap in a large wooden bowl lined with crisp lettuce and garnish with tiny whole pickled beets and slices of hard-cooked eggs.

LYNN SAYS:

Color, Flavor Contrast
Will Whet Appetite

If you don't want warmer weather to wilt appetites, keep in mind interesting texture, flavor and color contrasts in preparing foods. No appetite wanes when food plates look pretty.

Roll oranges and lemons until slightly soft before squeezing to get more juice.

For crisp, dry bacon, broil on a cake rack. Drain on unglazed paper.

Fat

Season cutlets with salt and pepper. Dip in bread crumbs, egg and then in bread crumbs.

Saute in fat for 15 minutes on each side, using low heat. Serve with tomato sauce.

Jellied Tuna Fish (Serves 6-8)

2 6-ounce cans tuna fish, flaked
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
1/2 cup sliced stuffed olives
2 tablespoons capers
1 tablespoon chopped chives or minced onion
1 tablespoon plain gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
2 cups mayonnaise
Lettuce, sliced tomato, sliced avocado

Combine tuna fish, eggs, olives, capers and chives. Soak gelatin for five minutes in cold water. Dissolve over hot water. Add to mayonnaise, stirring constantly. Add to fish mixture and mix thoroughly. Turn into mold and chill until firm. Unmold on lettuce and garnish with tomatoes and avocado.

Shrimp Salad, New Orleans (Serves 4)

1 cup cooked rice
1 cup canned or cooked shrimp
3/4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon minced scallions or onion
2 tablespoons French dressing
1 tablespoon chopped stuffed olives
1/4 cup slivered green pepper
3/4 cup diced raw cauliflower
1/3 cup mayonnaise
1/2 small head of lettuce or escarole, finely shredded

Chill rice. Clean shrimp, removing black vein down the back. Cut shrimp into pieces, then combine with remaining ingredients. Serve on individual beds of the shredded lettuce.

Salad That Satisfies

Salad suggestions always intrigue the homemaker who is interested in varying her menus, particularly when she wants to "dress up" a cold meal for hot summer days. Here is one slightly different from the usual salad: Make lemon jelly in the usual manner, using lemon flavored gelatin or the plain unflavored gelatin and following the standard recipe. Turn into molds which have been rinsed with cold water. Fill molds about one-fourth full. Let this gelatin harden. Then fill molds with a combination of chopped apple, grated coconut, celery and a bit of chopped pimiento for flavor. To two cups gelatin, use one cup chopped apple, two-thirds cup chopped celery, one pimiento and one-half cup grated coconut. Fill molds with gelatin and chill until firm. Serve on salad greens with French dressing or a sour cream dressing.

Vegetable plates are interesting if they are carefully planned. Have you tried a nest of spinach with poached eggs, French fried onions, tomato stuffed with peas and creamed carrots?

Here's an idea that's as good as it is beautiful: Broccoli with hollandaise sauce, sliced beets, corn fritters and green peas.

Stuff peppers with Spanish rice, then serve them on the same plate with buttered carrots, fried eggplant and cole slaw with Russian dressing.

... as recommended in the interest of child welfare by
ROSE G. ANDERSON, Ph.D.
Director of The Psychological Service Center, New York

1. The after-effects of your child's illness are often more important than the illness itself. Pampering, catering to whims, overindulgence teaches a child to dominate through weakness. Such well-meant kindness may prolong his convalescence.

2. You'll be smart to help him amuse himself. Give him something which doesn't require an adult's constant attention. Give him your "Eveready" flashlight... or get him one of his own. If he tires of flashing the beam, or flicking out imaginary signals, then...

3. Show him how to cut designs or figures from stiff paper and how to throw their shadows on the ceiling or wall. Moving the figures will make them dance. Watch his pride in what he's done. Watch him get well faster because he's happier!

A speaker was lecturing on forest preservation: "I don't suppose," said he, "that there is a person in the house who has done a single thing to conserve our timber resources."

Silence ruled for several seconds and then a meek voice from the rear of the hall timidly retorted: "I once shot a woodpecker."

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—its itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

MISTER, I SEE A MAN NAMED SAM GIVING
YOU $4998.00 IN 1958!

That's a wonderful prediction the Swami is making, and for once, the Swami isn't just talking through his turban.

If you can regularly set aside as little as $37.50 a month -- through the Bond-A-Month Plan at your local bank -- ten years from now, Uncle Sam will be handing you the beautiful sum of $4,998.00. too!

Here's why: Under the Bond-A-Month Plan, your savings are invested in U. S. Security Bonds. These Bonds mature in ten years, repay you $100 for every $75 you put away.

And just think of what you can do with that money! You can make a good down payment on a new home... or send the kids to college... or have a good nest egg to start your own personal retirement fund.

What's more, by saving this money, you'll be helping to safeguard your country's financial future, too!

Why not drop in at your bank and sign up for the Bond-A-Month Plan today?
